INTRO TO BOURBON

BOTTLED IN BOND:

To be labeled as Bottled-In-Bond, a whiskey must be the product of one distillery and distilled during just one distillation season. These whiskeys must be aged for at least four years and bottled at exactly 100 proof, for a strong, signature flavor. Additionally, the D.S.P. (Distilled Spirits Plant) numbers of both the production and bottling facilities must be stated on the bottle.

SMALL BATCH:

There has yet to be a defined barrel number but by practice most distillers no more than 200-250 varied aged barrels from specific locations in the rickhouse and mingle only limited quantities that have matured to their exact specifications.

VINTAGE DATED:

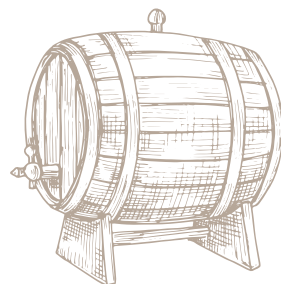

Vintage dated whiskeys reflect the same year-to-year distinctions as a fine wine. Only a limited number of whiskey barrels from the same year are selected by the master distillers. They are then bottled to preserve the unique flavors and aromas of that single moment in time.

BARREL PROOF:

Straight from the barrel to the bottle to your glass. This Uncut bourbon is usually about 125 proof or higher and preserves all the rich, natural, flavors of the aging process, without compromise. While aging in Kentucky rickhouses, summer heat causes water to escape the barrel much faster than alcohol, causing the proof in the barrel to rise. Proof can rise from 125 proof upon barrel entry to as high as 160 proof for some extra aged products.

SINGLE BARREL:

To be selected for the single barrel bourbon barrel must surpass the expectation of the master distillers skilled and refined palettes. Because they are not mingled with any other barrels, bottles from each barrel can taste slightly different than those from another nuanced taste experience.
